

Benchmarks Exist to be Beaten

Retirement plan advisers build investment line ups for their clients. It is hard work. Work that gives retirement plan participants a realistic foundation on which to build a financially secure future.

For some retirement plan advisers and their clients, a packaged solution made up of low-cost, index-based funds may be a good fit, even though an index fund never outperforms its benchmark because of fees.

During the five-year period ending Dec. 31, 2016, 88.3% of large-cap managers, 89.95% of mid-cap managers, and 96.57% of small-cap managers under-performed their respective benchmarks... Across all time horizons, the majority of managers across all international equity categories underperformed their benchmarks.

Some clients want "better than average" for their plan participants. They expect their advisers to both support their fiduciary responsibility and recommend products capable of delivering better-than-benchmark performance for their plan participants. For them, adequate is not good enough.

The retirement plan adviser who serves this more demanding community of clients:

- Understands the letter and the intent of regulations. They guide their clients through fiduciary best practice to an institutional quality retirement plan line up that serves the best interests of the plan's participants.
- Respects that investing is complicated. When it comes to designing a plan's investment line up, one size does not fit all. Both index-based and actively managed funds play a role in building investment lineups suitable to meet client needs.
- Knows that quality is not accidental. By the time these advisers suggest an investment line up, they've studied the options carefully, vetted the companies and fund managers who offer those options, and are assured that each fund helps meets their client's needs.

MassMutual Funds offers a broad selection of funds designed for the retirement and institutional market. While past performance is no guarantee of future results, we believe it is worth doing business with fund managers who demonstrate strong performance records built on repeatable investment processes. That is why we take a multi-managed approach to building our fund family. We engage some of the best-known money managers in the investment industry with the goal to deliver benchmark-beating results. Results you can see in the ten MassMutual Funds listed on the following pages.
